Wishing you a fast and good last journey, do not let nothing hold you back. You are going to a place where you will no longer suffer and be ill. You will no longer have troubles and worries. You will have a home, where you belong. Best of all you reunite with those we all miss so much. Be happy and do not worry about anything here. To the family and friends left behind, remember her shy smile and her cute giggle. She was always willing to help out how ever she could, and she did it with an open heart and never complained. It will take some time to get used to not seeing her around, and getting that special hug and hearing her say 'hi Nana'. Rest in peace. Give hugs to those up there that I miss. Love always, Nana Gina
